Dear Dr Ahmad,

Summary

- Stable surveillance of previously resected early bile duct lesion
- Recent MRI and tumour markers (CA 19-9 and AFP) are normal.
- Surveillance colonoscopy not due until 2028.
- No action required by you.

I had the pleasure of conducting a telehealth review with Kerry. As you are aware, Kerry has a strong family history of cholangiocarcinoma and underwent a resection for an potentially early cancerous bile duct lesion two years ago.

I am pleased to report that her recent investigations remain very reassuring. Her most recent MRI shows no evidence of recurrence or new bile duct lesions. Furthermore, her blood tests are excellent; her liver function tests are normal and her tumour markers, including CA 19-9 and alpha-fetoprotein (AFP), are both within the normal range.

Kerry reports feeling well overall. She noted a recent clear screening CT of her lungs. While she did mention a recent period of dyspnoea, this appears to have been related to situational anxiety regarding her housing situation and has since resolved. She is otherwise maintaining her health well, though she remains mindful of her weight.

Impression and Plan

In view of her clinical history, I believe the safest approach is to continue with annual surveillance. I have recommended a repeat MRI and blood tests in 12 months' time, and I will review her again once those results are available. We also discussed her endoscopic surveillance, and I have noted that her next colonoscopy is not due until 2028. I have advised Kerry to contact me should she develop any concerning symptoms in the interim.

Yours sincerely,

A/Prof Chamara Basnayake
