Dear Dr Krupinska,

I would be grateful for you non urgent assessment of Marie. She has been known to me for nearly 5 years. She has a multitude of gastrointestinal symptoms which are functional in nature. This occurs on a background of difficult to treat mental health disorders including anxiety and depression. She has morbid obesity for which he underwent sleeve gastrectomy some years ago - this anatomical change partially explains some of her upper gut symptoms.

She has utilised notrtyptyline in the past with some benefit in my mind. Her current psychiatrist Dr Okedara has been hesitant to trial higher combined doses. Marie has undergone psychology therapy and group therapy at Albert Road clinic. She lives with her mother. Marie does not work currently.

Anxiety is a daily major feature for Marie. She likely also has a history of early childhood adverse events - this is not something I have explored with her.

I would be grateful for you second opinion regarding her case as I feel (as does she) that she is stuck in her current psychological situation.

Yours sincerely,

A/Prof Chamara Basnayake
